Hon. J. K. Toole's Arraignment of Congress and His Glowing Tribute to Montana's Greatness.

The following extracts from the speech of Delegate Toole, as printed in the Congressional Record, will be of interest to all Montania ns as well as to lovers of home

We are twenty-four years old, out of debt, of sound integrity, and good citizens. Our territorial pupilage, which is only a stage of training necessary to precede the esponsibilities of statehood, justifies us in putting aside the restraints of territorial government and assuming a more important place in the future. Like a child grown beyond the capacity of its garments, our pride is wounded and we are restive under the promise of more suitable habiliments. We stand in many respects in the same relation to the federal government that a child does to its parent or a ward does to its guardian, but unhappily the same principles are not applicable or we might go into a court of equity and get

we are bound by the highest duty to admit these territories as soon as they are qualified for statehood. We are a republic of states and not of territories, and yet we are fringed by despotism. Our territories, forming the border of the great northwest forming the states are downsted and contal which was never designed to continue a day longer than the necessity therefor ex-isted. Professions of sympathy no longer assuage us, and no amount of insincerity will hereafter put us aside. The brief time allotted me is insufficient for a recital time allotted me is insufficient for a recital of our wrongs, but I will venture to inquire for a moment what congress has done for the territories. I will answer for the benefit of those who care to know.

It has given us a system of courts inherently wrong, and which never can be made suitable to large communities.

It has regulated the number of our judges, which is grossly inadequate in every instance, resulting in the delay, and in many cases the denial of justice.

It has arbitrarily fixed the time when our local legislature shall meet and adjourn, to

It has arbitrarily fixed the time when our local legislature shall meet and adjourn, to our great damage and inconvenience.

It has denied us the authority to call an extra session of our legislature without the consent of the president, adding untold burdens to a dependent people.

It has reserved the right to invalidate any law which our legislature may pass, there-It has reserved the right to invalidate any law which our legislature may pass, there by destroying that full faith and credit which our legislation ought to command. It has bound us hand and foot by a law which restricts these growing and ambitious communities in the expenditure of money for public improvements.

It has declared what we shall teach in our public schools, and manifested a lack of confidence in us in other instances of legislation too numerous to mention.

It has attempted to stifle our industries by prohibiting us from seiling our mining properties in foreign markets, thus laying upon us an embargo not borne by citizens of the states.

upon us an embargo not borne by citizens of the states.

It has exempted a railroad and the improvements on its right of way for 820 miles in length from taxation, furnishing another evidence of the gross inequality of citizenship in and out of the territories.

It has withheid frem us dowry of lands which belong to our school fund and refuses to give us any kind of supervision or control over it until we become a state, and then sets deliberately to work to prolong the time when that event shall happen.

It has professed to give us a representative in the lower house of congress, but denies to us a vote, the only element of representation which gives character or influence to a member.

to a member.

It has left us without any kind of representation in the senate and remits us to the beggariy methods of the lobbyists.

It has imposed upon us, with an iron hand, the obligations and burdens of citizenship, while it withholds its corresponding benefits by steadily denying to us participation in the framing of federal legislation and the rights of suffrage in national elections.

tion and the rights of suffrage in national elections.

It has refused to appropriate the salaries provided by law for the hungry officials whom it has been pleased to send us, and compels them to accept a measly sum in fuil compensation, notwithstanding an overflowing treasury.

It has refused to appropriate sufficient money to extend the public surveys in the territories, but has doied out annually its driblets, which has ofttimes been covered back into the treasury, leaving our boundaries undefined and our titles insecure.

It has failed to cause to be surveyed, selected and conveyed to the grantees the lands failling to railroad grants in the territories, as required by law, whereby millions of acres of land owned by rich corporations escape taxation.

It has persistently refused to pass laws by which timber or timber lands in the territories (except Washington) may be leased or purchased, professing, however, to give the right to actual settlers to cut and remove the same for domestic purposes, while it has hedged in this privilege with an odious and impracticable system of rules and regulations which has resulted in harassing our citizens with expensive civil and criminal proceedings based wholly upon the exparte statements of a crouching and obsequious special agent or spy, who has been laught to believe that his term of office will be measured by the extent of his activity in stirring up strife. his term of office will be measured by the extent of his activity in stirring up strife. It has, by the organization of these territories, invited settlement and occupancy of the frontier upon the promise and obligation that our persons and property should be protected against depredations by hostile Indians. These promises have been honored more in the breach than in the observance. The history of our early settle. ervance. The history of our early settle-ment is red with the blood of the pioneers who blazed the trails of civilization in these remote lands by the lurid light of their burning homes, which went down in ashes before the merciless savage. Millions of dollars of unpaid claims, midewed by age, growing out of these atrocities, are piled up in the departments, while the heroes of those troubluss times, overcome with the quer their feelings, have gone to join the silent majority, leaving destitute widows and orphans to keep alive before congress the memory of their trials and tribulations.

Early in this administration, and at the beginning of the Forty-ninth congress, I endeavored to remove the temptation to senators, representatives, and other politicians to urge the importation of officials into the territory by giving to the platform on that subject the sanction and validity of law. I introduced a bill containing this single section:

single section:

That from and after the passage of this act no person shall be eligible for appointment to any office under the laws of the United States in any territory of the United States now organized who at the time of his appointment is not a qualified elector of the territory to which he is appointed.

The committee on territories, to whom it was referred after considering it for six was referred, after considering it for six months, brought in the following elaborate "The committee on the territories, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 2883) concerning the appointment of federal of-ficials in the territories, beg leave to re-

"That, while believing that whenever practicable the territorial offices should be liled by appointment of persons who are qulified electors of the particular territory, dilied by appointment of persons who are quilified electors of the particular territory, they think it would be unwise to require by statute that this should be done in all cases. They therefore report adversely the bill referred to them, and recommend that it lie on the table."

It is needless to remind you that it has continued to "lie on the table." In bilissful oblivion ever since. But while this bill has remained in statu quo, the author of the report accompanying it has been more active. Less than two months ago he was appointed chief-justice of Washington territory from the state of Pennsylvania, from which my good friend and colleague from Washington territory will doubtless infer that it was not "practicable" to appoint any person learned in the law from amongst the large number of deserving and aspiring residents of that territory.

In short, Mr. Speaker, it has made the territories the dumping-ground for all the experimental legislation which the whins and caprices of congress can invent. Let me illustrate: At the last session of this congress the chairman of an important committee called up for consideration a certain bill; objection was made by a member; the chairman simply said that the bill only applied to the territories and the District of Columbia. The objection was limmediately withdrawn, and the bill was passed without a dissenting vote or another word of explanation.

These are briefly some of the wrongs and hardships imposed upon us by the pro-visional government established in the ter-ritories, but in this connection it is only fair to say that they are not exclusively the offspring of either political party of to-day, but the joint heirs of both. Every count in ictment can be sustained against

We are accustomed to see states with far less resources and possibilities mounted, as it were, on steeds of steam, rushing swiftly past us, equipped with all the paraphernalia which sovereignty can invent or supply, contesting in a spirit of generous rivairy one with another for the first place in the race for political power and prestige, while we are compelled to "sit solemnly astride a dead horse, in a reverential calm, with the reins held firmly in our hands, only to see the flag fall in our face. Take off the handicap! Start us under as favorable circumstances as greeted the states at the time of their admission, and if the race is not always to the swift we will promise not to be last at the finish.

Henceforth honor bids us forget pride, and compels us to publish to the world the infirmities of that system under which we live, and which is little better than that suffered by the colonies before the birth of the republic and the uncertain dawn of independence. Public sentiment has been aroused upon this question, and stands ready to applaud our efforts. Our demands are not those of a rude and hostile people. Four-fifths of the adult population of Montana were born and have resided in the several states of this Union, and consequently know and appreciate the blessings of constitutional government. It was a long overland trip to get to that country. There were many perils to encounter and great difficulties to surmount. Only the courageous dared to start, and only the strong and indomitable survived the hardships of the journey and reached their destination. Their home is a tract of mingled mountains, rolling lands and expansive prairies. Men who mature in such a land are bound to be patriotic. They are as brave as they are strong, and when in the years to come the nation may need beforders it is certain that the contingent from Montana can be counted upon for everything that men can do in the way of toil or dare in the way of danger.
